How John W. Lewis Got That Claim For Meade County.

(Meade Messenger.)

John W. Lewis, the Republican Congressman, who is afraid to meet his shadow in joint debate, said in his speech here last Thursday that he thought he had placed the people of Meade county under obligations to him by reason of his having secured an appropriation and allowance from the Federal Government for this county for the use of the old court-house as a Federal barracks during the war. Under ordinary and proper circumstances we would be under obligations for an act of this kind, but when a man holding the dignified office of Congressman has to resort to an untruth and false representations before the Claims Committee of Congress to secure the appropriation, we feel like we are a party in a grave injustice to the taxpayers of the nation.

In his speech before the Committee, which has been printed and distributed all over the district he says:

"I want to say to the House of Representatives that because the Federal Government took these court-houses of Meade county and Taylor county, for which I am asking this appropriation, because they used them as barracks, when the Confederates passed through Kentucky in 1862, they burned both these court-houses and destroyed them."

Now, is there any man, woman or child living in Meade county that ever knew before that the court-house of this county had ever been burned. It is news to us we must confess. The records of the court and the oldest settlers bear out in the statement that the old court-house was sold, just as it stood, when in 1872 we determined to build a new one, and that never in the history of this county have we lost a court-house by fire. As this claim was secured by such false representations as this, the county should refund the money back to the U. S. Treasury and refuse to accept one cent of it.

Now are the people of Meade county going to vote for a man who is so anxious to gain the good will of the people that he is willing to misrepresent facts in order to secure an appropriation for something to which we are not entitled. If he thinks that the people of Meade county are made of such stuff, he will find he is very much mistaken. We want nothing that does not honestly belong to us, and we will not vote for any man who will resort to such methods.

Let every honest man go to the polls in November and cast his vote for D. H. Smith, and we pledge you that if elected, which we feel sure he will be, that no such trickery will be indulged in.

Why suffer with Coughs, Colds and Laryngitis when LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE will cure you in one day. Does not produce the ringing in the head like Sulphate of Quinine. Put up in tablets convenient for taking. Guaranteed to cure, or money refunded. Price, 25 Cents. For sale by A. R. Fisher.

Buckner's Record.

(Athletic Constitution.)

Several years ago General Buckner was a candidate for governor of Kentucky.

When was his reputation as a Democrat in those days that no one ever thought for a moment that General Buckner could possibly be anything else. Had anyone dared to intimate at that time that he would some day be engaged in the service of the Republican party, the charge would have been instantly repudiated not only by General Buckner himself, but by at least 100,000 loyal Kentucky Democrats.

At a barbecue given in his honor on the 15th of June, 1887, General Buckner said in his remarks to the Republican party the following caustic language:

"It violated its duty to the people by allowing the contract of the bond holder to receive their pay in currency of the country and give them gold, and it then demoralized silver in order to make gold more valuable, and to further enrich the capitalists at the expense of the people."

Is it possible that General Buckner has forgotten the occasion on which this language was used? Is it possible that after denouncing the Republican party in such bitter terms, he now commends the very evils which then made it so offensive in his eyes?

Such is the logic of General Buckner's present attitude. He is not only engaged in upholding the single gold standard, which the organized Democracy has scathingly condemned, but he has even gone so far as to accept the nomination for vice president of the United States on the Republican decoy ticket. As a political chameleon General Buckner is a shining success.

IF BRYAN IS ELECTED.

A Newark Firm Gives a Written Guarantee of Higher Wages.

Newark, Ohio, Oct. 6.—This city today presents the novel spectacle of a factory voluntarily offering to increase its employees' wages, the offer being accompanied by the provision that the advance depends upon the election of William Jennings Bryan to the presidency of the United States. Readers of speeches delivered by Major McKinley and his capitalistic friends have been taught to believe that a Bryan victory means closed factories, idle mills and starving families. This belief has in some instances been strengthened by assertions from manufacturers themselves.

A company employing labor exists in this community that instead of attempting to coerce its employees or trying to induce them to vote for McKinley, is generous enough to admit that under the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold wages will go up, not down.

This company indulges in no idle predictions, but has posted a promise at its factory. The company is the Central City stove works, the following being a copy of its bulletin:

To Employees: Notice is hereby given that in case of William J. Bryan's election as president of the United States on November 3, 1896, this company will immediately thereafter give the employees in every department an advance of 10 per cent. in their wages.

"C. W. CUNNINGHAM President."

C. W. Cunningham, president and manager of the company, said that he and nearly all of his employees had been life-long Republicans, but that they are all for Bryan and free silver.

Mr. Cunningham said that the above notice had been posted because the company realized that under free coinage increased business would justify increased wages. The company, believing implicitly in the advantages free silver would have in putting men to work, restoring prosperity and giving men money with which to buy, is willing to share its prosperity with its men.

President Cunningham, who is a practical moulder, then went on to show how moulders' wages prior to 1873 were 50 per cent. higher than they are today; how, after silver was demonetized, there was a gradual decline until the passage of the Bland-Allison act in 1878, which relieved the West, increased demand for moulders' products and resulted in increased wages. Business depression six years later caused another decline. In his opinion nothing will restore permanent prosperity but the restoration of silver. In concluding Mr. Cunningham remarked: "Do you know of any factories offering increased wages if McKinley is elected? I don't."

The Best for Children.

"I believe Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best for children I ever used. For cough it is unequalled. It is a simple diddler with us. I. M. Eckles, P. G. Manager Wampum Pharmacy, Wampum, Pa." When used as soon as the first symptoms appear, that is as soon as a child becomes hoarse or even a little croupy cough has appeared, it will prevent the attack. The mothers of croupy children should have this in mind and always keep the remedy at hand. It is also the best medicine in the world for colds and whooping cough. A Neglected Treasure.

From the Augusta Chronicle.
A kinsman of the illustrious John C. Calhoun informs us that he recently visited the old home place of the great statesman, and was surprised to find that about 3,000 of his unpublished letters are reposing in a box there, apparently neglected. Our friend sends us the following specimen:

(Letter written to Mrs. Clemson, who was in Belgium.)
WASHINGTON, 7th March, 1848.—My Dear Daughter: The letter from home with this and mine to Mr. Chalmers, give you all the Pendleton and political news, so that you must regard this but as a brief answer to yours for the Britania.

I am happy to hear that you all escaped from the influenza except yourself, and that you have recovered from its effects. You must not suppose that in confiding in the hope of success. Had that been the case, I would long since have retired from the conflict. Far higher motives impel me, a sense of duty to do the best for our country and leave the rest to Providence. I hold the duties of life to be greater than life itself, and in performing them manfully and against hope, but labor is not lost, but will be productive of good in after time. Indeed, I regard this life very much as a struggle against evil, and that to him who acts on proper principle the reward is in the struggle more than in the victory itself, although that greatly enhances it. I am strong in my faith in this belief, my dear daughter, that no appreciation either by the present or after time is necessary to sustain me struggling to do my duty in residing wrong, especially where my country is concerned, although I put high value on renown. You will thus see that in struggling against the downward tendency of our country it is not because I do not take a just view of human nature, as you suppose, but because I am actuated by higher motives than you attribute to me. But enough of this. J. C. CALHOUN.

It appears to us that all these letters, or such of them as are of real value, should be edited and published. Everything that Mr. Calhoun wrote was serious, sincere and interesting. If no individual will undertake this work, we suggest that the state of South Carolina make a legislative appropriation for that purpose.

His Lip Gone.

M. M. Nicholson, who lives at the corner of Curran and Anderson Sts., Atlanta, Ga., had a cancer for years. It first appeared on his lip and resembled a fever blister, but spread rapidly and soon began to destroy the flesh. His father and uncle had died from Cancer, and he sought the best medical aid in different cities, but it seemed impossible to check the disease. Several operations were performed but the cancer always returned. This continued for years until the partition in his nose and his entire upper lip were eaten away. All treatment having proved futile, he looked upon himself as a lost man.

"Some one recommended S.S.S.," he says, "and a few bottles afforded me some relief; they encouraged me to continue it, and it was not long before the progress of the disease seemed to have stopped. I persevered in its use, and remarkably as it may seem, I am completely cured, and feel like I have new life. S.S.S. is the most remarkable remedy in the world, and everyone will agree that the cure was a wonderful one."

A Real Blood Remedy.

Cancer is in the blood and it is folly to expect an operation to cure it. S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) is a real remedy for every disease of the blood. Books mailed free; address and name of dealer in S.S.S. sent on request to Swiss Specific Co., Atlanta, Ga.

The Whole Trouble

"What makes our cereals to-day so low in value is lack of confidence, decreased consumption on account of so large an amount of labor unemployed, and over-production." That's what a "Hinsap" railroad President says. Do you get a very clear idea from that? And what is the remedy proposed? "We must vote for sound money," is the remedy offered.

We have had "sound money" for twenty-three years. Prices have been falling all that time. More and more laborers unemployed all that time; decreasing consumption all that time; and what the railroad President calls "over-production" all that time. Now, let's see about these things.

What is over-production? "The production of more things than people want," says the gold bug.

More things than people want? Did you ever see a man who had enough?

"Well, I mean the people can't afford to buy all the things that are produced," says the gold bug.

Why can't they afford to buy enough to eat and wear?

"They haven't got the money," replies the gold bug.

Haven't got the money? You didn't say there was any lack of money.

"But people have to have money to buy things," says the gold bug.

Then there is not an over-production of money, but under-production of it?

"I—I guess it looks that way," replies the gold bug.

Well, then; the trouble is not lack of confidence, is it? People don't buy food and clothes with confidence. They buy with money, don't they?

"Yes," answers the gold bug.

But there is an "over-production" of idle men, isn't there?

"Yes," says the gold bug.

So, as they are not producers they can't buy things to eat and wear, unless they are the idle rich, can they?

"No," replies the gold bug.

Then it is not over-production of things to eat and wear, but "over-production" of idle poor men, isn't it?

"Yes," says the gold bug.

So, if all the idle poor men were at work producing things for wages, or which they could sell for money, they would buy more things to eat and wear, wouldn't they?

"Of course," answers the gold bug. And if all the idle men were employed at the best wages, all would buy more necessities of life, wouldn't they?

"Yes," says the gold bug. Then their increased consumption would create a demand for more farm products, wouldn't it?

"Of course," says the gold bug. And an increased demand would mean better prices for farm products?

"Yes," replies the gold bug. Well, then; where does your "lack of confidence" come in?

"I—I guess I don't know," says the gold bug.

Well, here is where it comes in. The people have a big "lack of confidence" in the statements of you gold bugs—Helena (Mont.) Independent.

Teller on Bimetallism.

Senator Henry M. Teller gave utterance to a profound truth when he made the following statement a few days ago: It is customary with the gold contingent to depreciate any man who is for silver, when the fact is that a majority of the scholars, statesmen, thinkers and economic students of the old world favor free silver. Take the history of the nations for all time, and you will find that silver has been the standard for the most part and gold the subsidiary coin. France is quoted as having $200,000,000 in silver, but the bank reports show that she has more than $1,000,000,000. The bank reports of this country for last June show that the currency of this country has been contracted over $600,000,000 within two years prior to that date. When the gold people give you the volume of currency in this country they do not take into account all that has been lost or destroyed since the war, but the total of all coinage. Eight hundred agricultural sa-sections in Germany have petitioned the government for the free coinage of silver.

Such empty and superficial arguments as those advanced by organs of the money power in this campaign utterly fail to bring discredit upon the cause upheld by such profound statesmen as Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Balfour and Bismarck.

If the advocates of the single gold standard expect to convert the American people they must employ better arguments than the ones which they have heretofore used in the campaign.—Atlanta Constitution.
